The record marked by Wright today was for speed in an unpowered over a 200-ft. course. He flew the 200 ft. in 29.5 seconds, his time was 28.25 seconds, or 23 seconds less than that made by DeLagrange in his record of 51.25 seconds in 1901. The record is good of 40 miles an hour for

As Wright took the starting point, Elwood Stinson took the time. Wright made the first 100 yards in 17.5 seconds, the last 100 yards with a slight wind to his back in 12.25 seconds. The total time for the 200 yards was 29.75 seconds, so much that the time for the 100 yards was 12.25 seconds. The machine tilted at first it bobbed perceptibly to the right, but it was corrected by the propellers.

In the second flight Wright made some turn signals in the presence of a strong wind. The machine was blown into a perceptible spin. One observer

Mitchell Bulletin

Climax to Six Years of Unexampled Accomplishment

The car you ought to have at the price you ought to pay : : : :

The only high-class six-cylinder touring car that sells for as little as $2,000.00

Sensational Features for 1910

Three Magnificent Models

Mitchell Roadster, 4 cylinders, 30-35 horse power, 3 passengers, 100-inch wheel base...	$1,100
Mitchell five passenger touring car, 4 cylinders, 30-35 horse power, 112-inch wheel base...	$1,350
Mitchell 6-cylinder touring car, seven passengers, 50-horse power, 130-inch wheel base...	$2,000

F. O. B. Racine, Wis.

Absolute elimination of all noise, so that all the Mitchells will run as silently as the most silent car that's made. Complete transformation of the Mitchell style and wonderful development from the mediocre to the beautiful. Complete change in spring suspension which promotes ten fold the easy riding qualities of the car. Standardization and interchangeability of the cylinders in all models as well as all parts above the crank case. More interchangeable parts in the Mitchell line than in any other line of motor cars made. Surprising development of the Mitchell five-passenger touring car, which is greater at its new price of $1,350 than it was at its old price of $1,500. Creation of the Mitchell Big Six-Cylinder car of 50-horse power, seven passengers and 130-inch wheel base at the same price as the big touring car of 1909—$2,000. Wheel size increased—32-inch wheel for the Roadster, 34 inches for five-passenger touring car, and 36-inch wheels for the Mitchell Six. Double the output of 1909, or 6,012 cars, all of which have been contracted for by our agents within the last 30 days.

Magneto equipment without extra charge.

Wouldn't you like to know why we can—and do—make a better car for less money than any other maker on earth?

And how we are able to produce a better car this year than last for the same price—AND EVEN LESS!

Taking the Consumer Into Our Confidence

You are entitled to the information. YOU ARE THE MAN WHO PAYS THE PRICE and we are going to take you into our confidence, even though we reveal what some makers regard as trade secrets. We have NO TRADE SECRETS. We are willing to tell THE WHOLE STORY.

FIRST AND FOREMOST—We make EVERY SOLITARY PART that goes into a Mitchell car. We don't assemble from all points of the compass. We have just completed the largest automobile works in the United States. They are absolutely complete and wonderfully equipped. Our factory organization is made up of men who have grown up in the business, headed by Designer John W. Bate, acknowledged to be the best designer and producer of motor cars in the world. And having been successful ourselves we have permitted these men to share in our success. This means that they put their thought and effort into every part they handle. AND THE BETTER WORK THEY DO FOR US THE MORE THEY PROFIT THEMSELVES. Our average wages are the highest paid by any automobile factory.

Every Part Now Made in Our Own Factory

We buy our materials in vast quantities. And while we buy the BEST, the very same used in the highest priced cars, we buy MORE than anybody else and get the benefit of better prices than any other maker of motor cars. We do all the work of shaping from the rough to the finished article. SO THAT WE KNOW BEYOND THE SHADOW OF QUESTION THE CHARACTER AND QUALITY OF EVERY PART THAT ENTERS INTO A MITCHELL CAR.

Before we built this new factory we couldn't do all these things as we desired. Yet we produced a splendid car. THE NAME OF MITCHELL IS KNOWN EVERYWHERE FOR WHAT THE MITCHELL CAR HAS DONE. It was a car without serious fault. It had no faults that interfered with its operation or its ability to travel. Rather were there "faults" confined to such things as appearance and noise.

We Have Made a Splendid Car Better
THE MITCHELL HASN'T EVEN THIRTY-TWO FAULTS NOW. It is a better and a greater car because we have a home of our own where we can do precisely what we want to do—and an organization that is like a great big family—EACH MEMBER INTERESTED IN HELPING THE OTHERS TO ATTAIN THE MAXIMUM AMOUNT OF PERFECTION.

So we have made better that which was already good—that which twenty thousand owners had already stamped with the seal of their approval. It is our duty to refine and develop, but it doesn't necessarily follow that we must increase our prices because we have improved upon our own work. AND

WE ARE MAKING THE CAR YOU OUGHT TO HAVE AT THE PRICE YOU OUGHT TO PAY. And the year of 1910 will be the Mitchell year. If you have any doubt on the subject call on our agent for a demonstration.

THE OLD FRONT.

Mitchell Motor Car Co.
Racine, Wis. U. S. A.

Boston Distributor
W. M. JENKINS & CO.
286 Columbus Ave.

THE NEW FRONT.

50 WE HAVEN'T INCREASED THE PRICES. In the instance of one car we have lowered the price simply because our improved facilities have made it possible.

Changes for the Better, but the Same Engine Principle

Changes are numerous. They are, of course, all for the better. You won't recognize the car because of them. "at everything is changed but the engine principle. It wasn't necessary to change that. IT WAS A MASTERPIECE IN THE FIRST PLACE.

The radiator and hood design have been changed from the mediocre to the beautiful. That was in response to public request. Quite a few people didn't like the broad, ungainly-looking front. THE 1910 DESIGN WILL PLEASE THE MOST FASTIDIOUS.

AND THE NOISE IS GONE—the rattling, choking sound which was caused by the valves. The 1910 model is SILENT AS THE FOOT OF TIME. There isn't a car in the world that runs more silently. This, too, was in deference to the wishes of the people.

Silent as the Foot of Time

The spring suspension, too, has been changed. Not that the car ever rode uncomfortably, but because we wanted it to be so comfortable that nabobs could ask for nothing better.

The style of the bodies has been beautified. The lines are more graceful. And when the 1910 model appears upon the boulevards you will admit that there isn't anything more picturesque in the whole gamut of motor cars. NO MATTER WHAT YOU PAY.

Creation of the Mitchell Six-Cylinder at $2,000

One innovation that will create a sensation—and justify so—is the development of last year's four-cylinder 40-horse power touring car into a SIX-CYLINDER 50-HORSE POWER TOURING CAR without adding a penny to the price. Last year the four-cylinder was $2,000. The SIX is likewise $2,000 and a greater, roomier and more powerful car. 50 MUCH FOR FACILITIES!

We have increased the wheel base on all three models—the roadster to 100 inches—the five-passenger touring car to 112 inches—the six-cylinder to 130 inches, and in every car there is larger wheel diameter, 32, 34 and 36. These changes will add to the ease of riding.

The result of all these changes, all this improvement and development is three classy, smart appearing, aristocratic looking high-grade motor cars that will take their place in smart company and maintain it beyond the shadow of question.

The Three Best Cars in the World.

WE ARE MAKING THE CAR YOU OUGHT TO HAVE AT THE PRICE YOU OUGHT TO PAY. And the year of 1910 will be the Mitchell year. If you have any doubt on the subject call on our agent for a demonstration.

WHITE HOUSE COFFEE

REAL COFFEE

Roasted RIGHT HERE—311-319 Summer Street, Boston—in one of the finest Coffee factories in the world. "White House" Coffee stands for RIGID COFFEE HONESTY.

"White House" Coffee

is an aristocrat among coffees—yet democratic in its affinity for all sorts and conditions of men—and women—who love the delicious flavor of really fine coffee at the breakfast table and elsewhere.

The finest, most delicious coffee you can possibly buy—as perhaps you already know. If, however, your attention has not been called to it, you have a great treat in store for you, and a single can will prove to you that, in a family coffee, it cannot be equaled. We have been in the coffee business for more than 50 years, and "White House" is a blend of special coffees selected from the discretion of long experience. We desire to have you pass your opinion upon it, and would suggest that you buy a sample 1-pound can and see for yourself that we have not exaggerated a particle when we have pronounced it quite the best obtainable. It's all right.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR "WHITE HOUSE" COFFEE BY NAME

NOTE Our Elaborate Exhibit and Demonstration of "WHITE HOUSE" Coffee and Tea at the World's Greatest FOOD FAIR at Mechanics Building, Boston, Sept. 27 to Oct. 30, Will Interest You.

lyn Citizens Visit Mines—Voluntarily Sign Important Statement.

It was weeks ago a large party, many of the members of the Boston Citizens' Committee on the Boston-Canton Mines. Among these were Professor William Brewster of Harvard College. His opinion, as expressed in his letter, should carry great weight with the people of the State. He writes under date of September 10, 1906:

"I had the pleasure recently to visit the workings of the Boston-Canton Mining Company at the Boston-Canton mines. It is gratifying to find that the exposed is certainly in such a condition that the coal is of a high quality. It is a great amount of coal has already been exposed in the mine. Some of the coal is of the solid vein and burned in the home. Some of the coal is of the old name: Pennsylvanian. It was particularly impressed with the view that the coal is of a high quality and that a deposit of coal could be mined. It seems to me that it will only be a matter of time before the coal will be mined."

SOME OF THE STARS OF THE COMING WEEK AT BOSTON THEATRES

WITH the revival of Anna Held at the Colonial Theatre to-morrow night by the "Famous" musical comedy gets another and a slouter grip on the national stage.

"The Cuckoo in the Nest," "Havanna" at the Majestic, "Three Twins" at the Boston Theatre, and "The Castle Square." And all paying to promote the cause.

It is a good thing that it does. Witness "A Gentleman from Mexico," the most perfect of pellets of wit through national politics. Long before the war, Mr. Fox, too, without the seductive ascription of the "gay" girl, got his wit and his dancing and the glad and glittering wit of the "gay" girl. William Collier in "The Pirates" at the Holston.

Meanwhile, at the Colonial Theatre this week with "The Spanish Merchant," that Anglo-American drama made notable by William Foxham.

Miss Cecelia Williams is with us again. And one must call her "Cecelia" any more. Like William Collier, she has let her front name grow up. Miss Loftus comes over from New York to the American Music Hall. She has been noting New York stars of late and may be expected to show some new limitations, in addition to those of Bernhardt, Terry, et al. The Grand Opera House, with many desperate circumstances in the action; and "The Great Northmen," a play that is said to be a masterpiece of dramatic art. The new play, "The Great Northmen," is said to be a masterpiece of dramatic art. The new play, "The Great Northmen," is said to be a masterpiece of dramatic art. The Story of the Play

Senator Langdon is picked out by dishonest men in Washington to be used as their tool in the Senate. But the "tool" proves to be sharp at both ends and cuts the men that meant to cheat the people.

Honesty attracts honesty, and Langdon, the honest man, draws to his side as his secretary Bud Haines, an honest man, and one as shrewd as the dishonest Senators that planned to use the guileless planter, Langdon.

Senator Langdon's daughter, in love with one of the conspirators, tries to blacken the name of her father and that of his secretary. But the plot fails, and Langdon, the fat, heavy, good-natured man from Mississippi, proves more than a match for all of the rascality in Washington.

Just how it happens you will know after you see the curtain go down at the Park Theatre.

You won't know until the last moment, for Senator Langdon himself doesn't know until the last moment just how he is to pull himself and the others out of the muddy tangle. Honesty finds the simple way, and even the rascals join with him.

It is a play that keeps its audience full of emotion, laughter, tears, mystery and excitement, from beginning to end. All of the characters are real. The negroes are real negroes, not covered with stove blacking. Senator Langdon was born for his part, and so was Bud, his secretary. The girls are very beautiful, as girls should be, and all but one get married in the play.

If you want to see this play soon, order your tickets right away, for the theatre is not a very big one, and it is packed every night. The house being small, every seat in it is as good as any other, so far as seeing and hearing everything goes.

IF YOU ONLY SEE ONE PLAY THIS WINTER, IT OUGHT TO BE THIS STORY OF AMERICAN LIFE AND AMERICAN POLITICS.

WILLIAM A. BRADY

JOSEPH R. GRISMER

Why We Produced "A Gentleman from Mississippi"

To present a true picture of American life. To carry out our policy, which is to produce plays with a meaning.

To demonstrate the fact that Americans are really interested in government. (The success of this play and of "The Man of the Hour" is our proof.)

To rebuke dishonesty in high places with the sharpest of tools. A STAGE PICTURE. To prove that Americans like American subjects, American plays and American actors.

To make money, also, but that was only ONE of our objects, and NOT the main object. We present "A Gentleman from Mississippi."

"A Gentleman from Mississippi" is a play that is optimistic. It proves the people of this nation, and even those of the big reveals themselves, to be fundamentally good. It shows that honesty is permanent among men, and dishonesty only a passing sign of the times.

It is a play of encouragement. Its success has been wonderful.

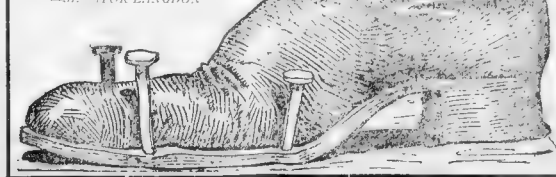

We have been told the run of "A Gentleman from Mississippi" will last as long as dishonesty in public life, and therefore we hope that the run will be short.

WM. A. BRADY,
JOSEPH R. GRISMER.

"With My Boots Nailed to the Floor"

"You can go back and say that you found me in a tip back chair, with my hat tilted over my eyes, a good seagrass in my mouth and my boots nailed to the floor."

—SENATOR LANGDON

This is the kind of play that DESERVES to succeed, and its success is great.

The readers of the Boston Evening American know, fortunately, something about their own government, and they are INTERESTED in that government. This play that we recommend is a truthful picture of government at Washington—a shameful but accurate picture of senatorial dishonesty and American "business methods" injected into politics. The "Gentleman from Mississippi" is a strange thing in the Senate, for he not only comes there an honest man, BUT REMAINS HONEST. And in business, as sometimes happens on the stage and in real life, we find that honesty in the end triumphs and shames the dishonest.

The writing of this play and its very fine production by William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer reflect credit upon the American stage and the thoughtful public in this country. The play is purely American, the characters are all American, the colored men in the picture on the stage are really colored men, not painted potteries.

Some time ago, when Mr. Brady and Grismer produced "The Man of the Hour," they were told that production was a "stage picture" and that it was not a play. It is a play, and it is a play that is making the stage what it should be—A THEATRE AND AN ENTERTAINMENT.

The play "A Gentleman from Mississippi" is praised for its honesty and its truthfulness. It is a play that is making the stage what it should be—A THEATRE AND AN ENTERTAINMENT.

Honesty and honesty will always have a mind. God's statement is that honesty will always have a mind. God's statement is that honesty will always have a mind.

A stage play, however, is a picture of life. It is a picture of life that is not a picture of life. It is a picture of life that is not a picture of life. It is a picture of life that is not a picture of life.

NEVER MIND the OTHER MAN.

In Any Competition, Especially in the Game of Life, You Will Do Better to Attend Exclusively to Your Own Affairs, and Not Worry About Your Rival.

permitted to look at the men in the other boat. Each man must pull his own oar, pull it with all his strength, pull it in unison with the strokes of his fellows, and with no thought but to put all the energy he has in him into the business of sweeping that strong, powerful blade through the resisting water.

At the end of the race he knows whether or not his crew has won; not before.

It is the same with the larger part of the men who take part in a naval battle and play in it a tremendously important part.

They are the engineers, the oilers, and most important of all, the stokers who keep filling the hungry mouth of the furnaces.

They work far below the water line, in terrific heat, and beyond the reach of any tidings of how the battle is going.

No sight of a retreating foe inspires them to better work; no knowledge of losing ground drives them to more desperate endeavor.

Ignorant of what is going on above decks, they must do the best they can, do it every minute, and, if possible, better than it has been ever done before.

The splendid achievements of our navy at Manila and Santiago show that our sailors below decks can do brilliant work without worrying about the other man's game, and supply gratifying assurance that they will do it again if ever the need arises.

It is much the same in the conduct of business. A newspaper, for example, which gives its readers the best it can give, regardless of what other newspapers are doing, will succeed. Another newspaper which tries to keep just abreast of its rivals, or perhaps a little in advance of them, will fail.

In New York a certain public service corporation distinguished itself by giving wretched service and expending large sums of money trying to kill off competition—to keep the other fellow out.

The other fellow managed to get in. He was the kind of a man who attended to his own business, without regard to what his rivals were doing. He got the best equipment money could buy, safeguarded the lives of his patrons and the property of his stockholders. Already he has made great success. Eventually, when the people get tired of being robbed and cheated and fooled, they will turn to him and allow him to conduct all of the business he is in, and the other hoggish, competitor-crushing concern will be driven out of business, if, indeed, its managers are not in the meantime sent to jail, where most of them belong.

Sooner or later, as a man goes through life, he must learn that other people are entitled to success if they earn it. Neither happiness nor advancement can be gained by trying to keep other people down.

Plotting to overthrow a rival in business or in a profession is not only productive of bitterness, but it is exceedingly bad policy.

The jockey on the race track who tries to pocket another jockey would be doing far better for himself and his employer if he tried to make his horse win.

The writer who goes about belittling other writers gets himself into a quarrelsome, envious state of mind, which injures his own work and assists his rival to get better recognition.

Captain Barr, the most successful sailor of racing yachts in the world, always kept his own boat sailing. He sought every advantage his skill could give, but the same advantages were always open to the other men.

In the race across the Atlantic, the most important race ever held, as far as the real test of the qualities of boats were concerned, Barr had no idea of what any of the other boats were doing. But he kept himself and his men at the top p'ch of work, got out of the vessel all there was in her, and won brilliantly.

Recently an aviator tried to fly a monoplane across the English Channel and failed. Another aviator tried it and succeeded.

His success added nothing to progress in flying. Other men had many times travelled the same distance in flying machines. The flight across the Channel—twenty-one miles—was purely a test of daring.

But the man who failed the first time, impatient at being eclipsed, made a second attempt, made it in too much of a hurry, and again failed.

If he had taken pains to correct the fault in his motor that brought about his first failure, he would possibly have added something to the science of flying. Keeping a monoplane up in the air depends upon the motor. It is the greatest problems now in the way of successful flight will be worked out, not in the air, but in the workshops and laboratories, where motors are designed and built, and where the explosive gases used to drive them are developed.

The future of flying is in the hands of men who, untroubled by the success of other aviators, keep quietly at work upon improvements until they have evolved a motor that will run at high speed and keep running for a long stretch of time.

Every man ought to know what has been done and what is being done in his business or profession. Reading and association with men in the same line of endeavor will give him ideas and keep him thinking.

But his own success will never come if he bases it on the achievements of other men. To succeed greatly he must do something that no man has ever done, or do something that has been done better than it has been done before.

And to do that he must keep his attention chiefly centred, not on his opponents, but upon his own work. That alone brings success, and, what is better worth having than success in the ordinarily accepted meaning, it will bring contentment and peace of mind.

GENERAL SHERMAN, a brilliant and successful soldier, frankly admitted that General Grant was a greater commander. Sherman used to say: "I know more tactics and strategy than Grant, have just as good a mind and a better military training. But what the other fellow is doing when Grant can't see him doesn't worry him a bit, while it worries me like thunder."

There is an explanation of the success of one of the successful men of American history.

Grant found that he had enough to do attending to the management of his own campaigns. He knew that his opponents were all brilliant men, that they commanded splendid, intelligent soldiers, who would fight as bravely as ever men fought in the world.

But Grant, although not in the least lacking in imagination, refused to be disturbed by visions of what opposing commanders MIGHT be doing. It was enough for him to begin operations against them when he saw them doing it.

He played his own game, laid out his own campaigns, and did that so well that he succeeded.

This cartoon depicts one of the elaborate, exciting chariot races which the Romans used to hold to feed their appetite for dangerous pastimes. You readily see that the gentleman in the chariot is going to get into trouble. He is worrying about what his opponent is doing, and instead of watching his own horses is looking back at the other man. The other man, on the contrary, is probably looking at the track, and knows how to get around the obstacle in his way. It is not difficult to foresee the result of that race.

There is no doubt that competition is stimulating—that generous rivalry inspires men to do better than they would do if left to work out their schemes in their own ways. Emulation has helped thousands. Envy, on the other hand, has embittered millions.

But in any competition, whether in a race, in business or in science, the man who wins is the man who thinks ten times about his competitors.

In offices where many men are employed the manager knows that at frequent intervals he will get requests for advances in salary.

Among twenty of those requests nineteen are based on the fact that other men are getting more pay than the applicant. That kind of a request is usually refused. It ought to be.

What the man beside you gets is a matter between him and his employer. It is none of your affair.

Injustice there may be in it, partiality, discrimination. But that makes no difference to you. The only honest claim you can have upon better pay is that you are earning it. And if you can prove that, and are working for a man who has intelligence, your appeal will, in all likelihood, be heeded.

If you ever have seen a rowing race you have noticed that the men at the oars are not

Sign Posts to Success SMITH'S NEW BOY—BY HERBERT KAUFMAN

Smith will have a new boy at work tomorrow morning---a boy whose school days are over and whose play time is past---a boy who must wear the weights of manhood before he has the strength to bear them---a green boy, plucked from recreation and instruction before his body or his brain could ripen---a child setting out to do battle against the world with a broken sword---with half an education.

Lack of training is more serious today than in Smith's youth. The average of information was lower then. The academy was the end, not the beginning, of most ambitions.

But what with high schools and colleges and universities pouring their thousands of graduates into the world and forced by the pressure of competition in every field to accept wages instead of income, it doesn't seem as though an ignorant child will stand much of a show for advancement.

He isn't fit for the fight---he isn't fed for it or trained for it---he hasn't long or strong enough weapons.

Poor food and poor clothing will discount his strength and his health all through his growing years.

He'll starve for physical and mental nutrition.

He won't be tempered to his tasks. And so they'll soon wear him down and grind him into dullness.

He'll learn of the vicious and ugly sides of existence before he has acquired the judgment to realize their danger. He'll see things and learn things never meant for the eyes and ears of childhood.

But Smith won't stop to think about such matters. He's practical; he leaves his heart at home. It only works after hours and on Sundays. He can't afford to use it in his business---it doesn't earn dividends; it isn't a producer; it's a bad motive power; its throbs are wasteful and lead to extravagance, which does 't look well on the balance sheet.

So Smith will probably sacrifice the spirit and the soul and the body of the youngster rather than sacrifice his chance to buy him at the lowest market price.

Later on when the years have rolled up his bank roll, he'll miss something---he'll learn that success unsweetened by kindness and humanity is spoilt with bitterness.

Of course, you're not like Smith. You know all about the children in your employ. When the frosts are sharp in the morning or the rain comes drenching down or the snows are on the streets, you make sure that the little chaps who run your errands or drive on your wagons are well clad.

You know that there's poverty in their homes, and as you think of your own youngsters, and you contrast their lot with the boys who must crawl from bed at dawn and walk clear down to the shop or the office or the factory, the spirit of thankfulness goes through you and in gratitude to Providence many a time you have gone to the cash box to even things up a bit. You know all about them---about the sickness in their tenements---the struggles of their mothers---and when food is low at home---when there's no washing to be secured, you slip an extra dollar into the pay envelope, and add a credit to the Book of Life.

That is, if you aren't Smith.

And in many and broader ways the world has suddenly come to view childhood from a very different standpoint. Thus within the last few years we have developed the children's theatres, the children's clubs, gymnasiums, hospitals, playgrounds, sanatoria, special courts to try juvenile offenders, and a children's church with a child pastor. And, more important perhaps, than all else, the study of child life has been begun as a real science in every part of the civilized world.

The first of these is the fact that the government has been unable to control the flow of money into the country. This has led to a sharp rise in inflation,

Various Ways to Find Out Whether You Are Insane.

A. The first way to find out whether you are insane is to look at your eyes. If your eyes are red and watery, and if you are unable to see clearly, then you are probably insane. The second way to find out whether you are insane is to look at your ears. If your ears are ringing, and if you are unable to hear clearly, then you are probably insane. The third way to find out whether you are insane is to look at your nose. If your nose is running, and if you are unable to smell clearly, then you are probably insane. The fourth way to find out whether you are insane is to look at your mouth. If your mouth is dry, and if you are unable to speak clearly, then you are probably insane. The fifth way to find out whether you are insane is to look at your hands. If your hands are shaking, and if you are unable to hold things steadily, then you are probably insane. The sixth way to find out whether you are insane is to look at your feet. If your feet are numb, and if you are unable to walk steadily, then you are probably insane. The seventh way to find out whether you are insane is to look at your mind. If your mind is confused, and if you are unable to think clearly, then you are probably insane. The eighth way to find out whether you are insane is to look at your behavior. If your behavior is erratic, and if you are unable to control yourself, then you are probably insane. The ninth way to find out whether you are insane is to look at your feelings. If your feelings are unstable, and if you are unable to feel clearly, then you are probably insane. The tenth way to find out whether you are insane is to look at your life. If your life is a mess, and if you are unable to live a normal life, then you are probably insane.

"The Sugar Trust holds the big umbrella and we all have to sit in under it or get wet."
—Statement made by an independent firm.

By juggling tariffs, by forced railroad rebates and other discriminations, by stifled competition, the Sugar Trust, organized by H. O. Havemeyer, has dominated the production of sugar.

One of the most interesting examples is that of the Beet Sugar Industry and its development between the years 1896 and 1907.

In November COSMOPOLITAN, now out, Mr. Charles P. Norcross details the amazing story of how the Sugar Trust smothered the independent manufacturers of beet sugar.

It is a wonderfully interesting incident and told in bright entertaining style that fairly whirled one from page to page.
